Time-Unlimited Support

Follow-along services help people through their work journeys for as long as they want or need them. These supports are provided by employment specialists, case managers, other service provider and by natural supports, including family members, friends, co-workers, and other peers. Examples of follow-along services include:

- On-the-job supports (e.g., job coaching)
- Job transitions (e.g., to new roles within a business, to new jobs at different businesses)

The goal of time-unlimited support is to help individuals become as independent as possible.

Consumer Preferences

Service providers keep their attention focused upon the employment goals of people they service and do not impose their ideas or plans. Service providers utilize motivational approaches to help individuals identify their personal strengths, skills, and job interests. People who find jobs that they want tend to experience a higher level of satisfaction and tend to keep their jobs longer. Individual preferences guide all aspects of the employment process, such as:

- Job searches
- Decisions to disclose personal issues to employer or not (e.g., disabilities)
- Level of ongoing support from service providers

Benefits Planning

It is important for individuals to know how their jobs (earned income) might impact benefits such as Medicaid, Supplemental Security Income (SSI), Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI), and housing subsidies. To help people make informed choices about their financial futures, employment specialists and other service providers learn the basics of benefits information. They also:

- Help individuals understand benefits requirements rules and other regulations related to benefits & employment
- Help find benefits planners who calculate the impact that income from employment will have upon various benefits
- Assist with reporting of income to different benefits providers
- Assist with identifying and documenting available work incentives

Core Principles of Supported Employment in Clallam County

Zero Exclusion
All people with developmental disabilities who want to work are eligible for employment services and receive help even if they:
- Have experienced job loss(es) in the past
- Lost a job(s) while enrolled in supported employment
- Experience cognitive impairment (e.g., memory, problem-solving difficulties)
- Have criminal history
- Do not know how to fill out an application or talk to employers
- Do not have previous job training or work experience
- Are afraid they might not learn the job fast enough
- Are afraid they might not fit in with others

Integrated Employment
Supported Employment is integrated with (embedded in) developmental disabilities services. Employment specialists attend team meetings and work closely with businesses, case managers, psychiatrists, and other professionals to help people achieve their employment goals. Team members openly discuss and find solutions for issues that affect work, such as the following:
- Medication side effects (e.g., drowsiness)
- Persistent symptoms (e.g., tremors, seizures)
- Cognitive difficulties (e.g., problem-solving skills)
- Physical differences (e.g., mobility, communication devices)
- Other rehabilitation needs (e.g., social skills, transportation, childcare)

Rapid Job-Search
As soon as people express an interest in employment, DD case managers connect them with Clallam County DD to choose employment specialists. Upon selection by the job seeker, specialists are helping consumers explore the job market, fill out applications, and interview with potential employers. Specialists do not require individuals to complete pre-employment assessments, training, workshops, and intermediate work experiences. A rapid job-search honors each person's desire to work.

Competitive Employment
Competitive employment is the goal of Supported Employment. Competitive jobs are regular jobs that anyone in the community can apply for. They are not jobs set aside for people with disabilities. Employment specialists help consumers of developmental disabilities services find regular part-time or full-time jobs that pay a minimum wage or more. Consumers are paid the same as other people who perform similar work. Supported Employment endorses competitive jobs for several reasons:
- Consumers like them more than sheltered work and they are better connected with the community.
- They reduce stigma and discrimination by enabling consumers to work side-by-side with people who do not have disabilities.
- They promote self-sufficiency, financial stability, and career development over time.

Systematic Job Development
Getting to know employers helps people find jobs that meet their strengths, needs, abilities, and preferences. Employment specialists build relationships with employers through planned in-person contacts over time. The face-to-face time enables specialist and employers to work together to find the right fit (or match). Employment specialists keep in mind the job preferences of the people they represent and ask about and listen for many different opportunities at each worksite. Specialists keep themselves attuned to the quality of work environments, the potential for flexible hours, and the potential for workplace adjustments and will accommodate individual strengths, skills, symptoms, and coping skills.
