Comments: This Shoreline plan is bureaucracy and steals my rights. It does nothing for the human environment but create another plague, a disease that eats at the core of one's being. My county complains they have difficulty coming to a solution because it is too logistically challenging; seems to be the same approach that the bashful federal departments on the peninsula took and applied years ago when it stole all our state lands. So now this county, paid off by one of those same bashful federal departments that claims to be looking after OUR water and air creates a bureaucratic nightmare that does nothing, zero, for the people of the peninsula.

Seems litigation and lacking-logistics drives all these plans:

litigation by those same private groups that now step up and shove a bunch more sewer down our throats, adding to the disease. It's the county's duty now to represent the people and their human environment; because beyond litigation and lacking logistics come's something much more powerful: Get rid of King George. Meaning a change in government when government no longer serves the constitutional or charter purpose. For that complacent state department of Ecology, this is a charter county; that's powerful to tell this money pit of a department to leave a plan alone that represents the will of the people if the county creates a plan that represents those people. I don't fear them to tell them they are not welcome and butt out, the county shouldn't either.

The plan fails miserably because it fails to address the no net loss for the human beings, and all the platitudes in the plan now creates a cumulative impact function on these same human beings.

Rewrite this plan to institute the true meaning of a single family residence and water dependent uses as the priority, for the human environment, and then consider the balance like the animals that aren't requiring the county to do what it's doing. And other direct interest like the tribes, there's the people's rights guaranteed by treaty also but no mention of how those rights have just as much power as the county created third bureaucracy that steals my rights: Tribal Treaty Rights. Nothing but heavily one-sided. The county has done a miserable job of talking with the people of the county; it's not the private organizations or such interest as the tribes that have failed, it is the county's lone fault when it doesn't show up on the west end and now has created an unattainable mandate.

The county can share this opinion and freedom of expression to those same feds and state departments that share the burden of a non-representative government given their bureaucracy on the county they themselves have created.
